vance copy of the weekly that has come into his possession.

"Gov. Cox is a millionaire newspaper editor and publisher of long experience. He must, therefore, understand that it is a first point of honor among newspaper men not to make use of advance copies of publications that are sent out with the understanding that they will not be released until a fixed date in the future. He must know, as a publisher, that at the postal rate now being charged periodicals and newspapers, no question of a subsidiary by the government is involved: that periodicals are not only paying their way, but that under any kind of an efficient administration in the postoffice there is a handsome profit in carrying them. Though the editor of the Saturday Evening Post has had the Saturday Evening Post has had something to say editorially on other sections of the revenue bill, he has accepted and consistently refrained from attacking the raise in postal raies, even though he believes it uneven though he believes it un-If Gov. Cox has studied the advertising columns of the Saturday Evening Post with the intelligence and knowledge that a man in his position should have he must know that it has been the policy of that magazine to refuse casual advertis-ing growing out of the excess profits tax and has insisted on well considered, well formulated campaigns behind commodities that can use advertising profitably and economically.

"The policy of the Saturday Evening Post is now and always has been formulated by its editors. Neither any politican nor group of politicians, nor interest of any kind of discription have suggested what stand it should take in this election or had anything whatsoever to do with influencing its policy.
